FOREWORD

This—the second—book continues the genealogical record of the Wildbore Family, showing the seventh generation and a part of the eighth generation.

The compiling of a record of this kind is a continuous work and the lapse between the issue of Volume I and this and other additional volumes to complete the records has been largely due to the unusual and unexpected interest aroused among members of the family, who made manifest their interest and appreciation of the opportunity afforded, by sending in detailed records of their respective families.

This activity, supplemented by extensive personal research work among the families and the State, County and Municipal records through the State of New York by Mr. Benjamin Franklin Wilbour, has added much to the record and will make the completed work much more valuable to future generations.

All additions affecting the records as published in Volume I are shown in the Addenda section in this book.

All items appear in the index and consultants of this record should, in all cases, review the indexes in each book, that the latest revised data may be secured.

The data shown in this volume includes all revisions to 1938.

The publication of the additional volumes to complete the record will proceed without delay.

Again, the compilers express their appreciation for all the fine co-operative spirit shown by interested members of the family in making this work a model of its kind.

ERRORS AND OMISSIONS

In the compilation of a work of this kind, data is obtained from many sources. This data in many cases is recorded in family bibles, public records, etc. Often the penmanship—none too good when done—has, with the passing years, become difficult to read. Every possible effort has been made to reconcile all differences and secure the actual facts. Notwithstanding, errors and omissions will be discovered. We will appreciate hearing of any such, so that the corrected data may be printed in a later volume.

THE WILDBORE FAMILY IN ENGLAND

By Benjamin Franklin Wilbour, Little Compton, R. I.

First let me say that the home of Samuel Wilbore, the emigrant, has never been discovered and, so far, his parentage and ancestry are absolutely unknown.

It is unfortunate that Samuel Wilbore did not have a larger family, for three children was a very small family in those days, when the average seems to have been about ten. If he had a larger one, the names of his children might give us a clue to his parentage in England. About the best we can do is to note the names used by Shadrach and his cousin William and accept the theory that the names used in common by both families were Wilbore ones.

We find, then, that Mary, Samuel, Joseph, John and Benjamin are used by both families. The families of Samuel, Jr., and his brother Shadrach use Rebecca in common and William and Samuel, Jr., both use Joanna.

The will of Joseph Wilbore, son of Samuel, leaves to Hannah Briggs, daughter of William Briggs, "A neat beast half a year old." Usually legacies are left on account of relationship, but it is not known that these two are related. Hannah Briggs was the daughter of William and Sarah (Macumber) Briggs of Marshfield. Sarah Macomber was a daughter of William and Ursula Macomber. Sarah was born about 1643 and had a brother, Mathew Macomber. Both the names Mathew and Ursula were used by the Wilbore family of Clavering in Essex, but Ursula was not much used over here. If there was a relationship, it might have been that it was because Ursula, the wife of William Macomber, was herself a Wilbore. To be sure the relationship, if any, might have been through Ann, the wife of Samuel, Sr.

The names of the children of William Coddington, the first signer of the Portsmouth Compact, are strangely like those used by the Wilbores, namely, Michael, Samuel, Mary, Benjamin and William, and suggests that the Coddingtons and Wilbores may have been related.

I have always doubted that the first Samuel Wilbore was born as early as 1585 and neither have I come across any evidence that the year of his birth is known.

The first settlers who came over about the time that he did were born more often in 1600 or after. It is also well to notice that Samuel did not live to see more than four of his grandchildren born before his death in 1656, out of a total of sixteen; namely, children of Samuel, Jr., and Shadrach, to say nothing of William, who had only two before the death of his uncle.

This would seem to indicate to me that Samuel was a much younger man and died at an earlier age than we have hitherto thought, and he would have seemed to have died more likely in his fifties than in his seventies. His age is important, of course, for it would help us in our search in England.

As to the ages of his children: Shadrach, we know from several depositions, was born in 1632, but we do not know when Joseph was born. It is hard to believe that Samuel, Jr., was born in 1614 for two reasons—his first child was John, whose birth is not given, but the second child, Elizabeth, was born in 1655, and if Samuel, Jr., was born in 1614, he would have been married at the age of about thirty-eight. I doubt very much that he married so late in life, as most people at that time, and now, marry at the age of twenty-five or sooner, and his brother, Shadrach, married aged about twenty-five or twenty-six. It also seems unlikely that there was a difference of eighteen years between the births of these two brothers. It is more likely that Samuel, Jr., was born in 1625 or a little later.

Now as to their cousin William. We have always thought of William as hav-

The history of the Wildbore Family is indelibly stamped upon the earliest records of the old English Archives. Mr. Benjamin Franklin Wilbour has for many years devoted much time to the study of the records as they are or may have become available. He has personally visited many of the historic Wildbore places in England and reviewed the records there obtainable. In his research and study he has reviewed the records of many families allied by marriage or otherwise with the Wildbores. This work he has undertaken to discover the facts attendant upon the emigration of Samuel Wildbore, the first to come to this continent, and to ascertain the record of his parentage and place of residence in England. Mr. Wilbour will be pleased to hear from anyone having data or knowing where such information may be obtained.

ing been brought over by his uncle and brought up by him. I hardly think that this is so. It would seem unlikely that Samuel took William from his parents at the age of three, or that both his parents were dead in 1633, when his uncle came to America. William could neither read nor write, but Samuel and his son Shadrach were men of good education and the other sons were literate at least. Why this difference in education? It would seem to indicate the environment of William had been different from the rest of the family and that he had not been brought up by his uncle at all.

The earliest date that we have in reference to William is 1654, when Samuel, Sr., deeds certain land in Portsmouth to his nephew. This was transferred at the time of his marriage, doubtless for a home. It is, therefore, possible that he had just arrived from England about this time to join his uncle's family in America and had not, as we had always thought, come over with them in 1633.

This throws a different light on the mystery of William's birth, for he could have been both born and married in England.

If he had been brought up by Samuel, Sr., the chances are that his education would have been as good as the rest of the family.

Usually the first settler did not come from his English home alone, but came with his neighbors of the same town or vicinity. Having this in mind and in order to find the town of Samuel's origin, I traced out as many as possible of the English homes of Samuel's associates.

First I give the names of those who signed the Portsmouth Compact and their homes in England, when known: William Coddington came from Boston, Lincolnshire, and held land in Manthorpe and Heighington of the same county; John Clarke was from Westhorpe, Suffolk; William Hutchinson from Alford, Lincolnshire; John Coggeshall from Halstead, Essex; William Aspinwall from Manchester, in Lancashire, or perhaps Lincolnshire, he was called cousin by John Cotton; John Porter perhaps from Bromfield, in Essex; John Sanford from Essex, perhaps High Ongar; Thomas Savage from Taunton, Somersett; Edward Hutchinson from Alford, Lincolnshire; William Freeborne from Ipswitch, Suffolk; Philip Sherman from Dedham, Essex; William Baulston perhaps from London; Henry Bull from Southwark, St. Saviours, Middlessex; Randall Holden from Salisbury, Wilts.

The following are some of Samuel's associates who joined the church in Boston in 1633. This group would be the most likely to give us the clue we want:

Thos. Leverett from Boston, Lincolnshire; Richard Fairbanks; William Colishawe from, perhaps, Nottingham, Notts; Thos. Morris from Nottingham, Notts; Atherton Hough from Boston in Lincolnshire; Rev. John Cotton from Boston in Lincolnshire, and married at Balsham, Cambridgeshire; Rev. Thos. Hooker from Tilton, Leicester; Edward Hutchinson, Jr., from Alford, Lincolnshire, and married at Ipswitch, Suffolk; Edmund Quincy from Wigsthorpe, Northamptonshire, and Achurche of the same county; Francis Hammond probably from Lavenham, Suffolk, or Melford, Suffolk; Richard Toppan from Salisbury, Wilts; Edward Bates probably from Boston, Lincolnshire; Anthony Harker probably from Boston, Lincolnshire; George Ruggles from Sudbury, Suffolk; Elizabeth Rainsford probably from Staverton, Northamptonshire; John Underhill from Killingsworth, Warwickshire; and William Colbron from Brentwood, Essex.

Now as to persons mentioned in the will of Samuel Wilbore. These are as follows:

Ralph Russel was from Pontipool, Monmouth County; James Leonard from Pontipool, Monmouth County. As for Cotton Flacke, there are many Flackes in Cambridgeshire, but I do not know exactly where he came from. His name suggests that he may have been of the same family as John Cotton. Richard Smith, Jeremy Newland and Robert Blott are also mentioned, but it is not known where they came from.

Samuel's partner in the lumber business in Portsmouth was Ralph Earl, who came from Bishops Stortford, Hertfordshire.

Many claim that children of the first settlers who married each other were very apt to be from the same parish in England. Joseph Wilbore, son of Samuel, married Elizabeth Farwell, daughter of Henry Farwell of Boston in Lincolnshire, England. Henry's wife was born in Moulton, Lincolnshire, where there were a few Wilbores. Samuel, Jr., married Hannah Porter, daughter of John, who was perhaps from Bromfield in Essex. Hannah's sister, Sarah Odding, married Philip Sherman, who came from Dedham in Essex.

The ship Griffen came in September, 1633, bringing two hundred passengers. It was about the time that Samuel came, and it is possible that he was one of them. Among the passengers were the Rev. John Cotton, from Boston in Lincolnshire; the Rev. Thos. Hooker, from Chelmsford, Essex, and Tilton, County Leicestershire; Atherton Hough, from Boston, Lincolnshire; John Haynes, from Copford Hall, Essex; Joseph Mygott, from Roxwell, Essex; Thos. Leverett, from Boston, Lincolnshire; Edmund Quinsey, from Wigsthorpe and Achurche, Northamptonshire; Theophilus Cushing, from Hingham in Norfolk; and the Rev. Samuel Stone, from Hertford, Herts.

We find not only did neighbors come over together, but many of the first settlers were related. This is not many times known until the relationship is discovered in England.

It is impossible to tell from what place in the above list that Samuel was most likely to have come from. There seems to have been a great many men from Lincolnshire who came to Boston, and many from the town of Boston in the same county or its vicinity. We find that there were Wilbores living in Lincolnshire in the seventeenth century in the following towns: Auburn, Deeping, Holbeach, Humberstone, Kirby-Cum-Osgodsby, Great Hale, Lincoln, Moulton, Stamford, Surfleet, Sutton, Swarton, Spaulding, Wiltsthorpe, Walton, and others.

There are also many Wilbores living in Northamptonshire. Edmund Quinsey of Boston came from Wigsthorpe in that county, which was the next town to Achurche, where Wilbores lived. Other towns in this county inhabited by Wilbores were: Walmsford, Casto, Glinton, Great Billings, Kingscliffe, Marholm, Peterboro, Thornough, Ufford, Wilby and Werrington. Most of these Wilbore towns seem to be in the northeastern corner of Northamptonshire.

There may have been a good reason for this. If you will look at the map of England you will notice that the counties of Lincolnshire and Northamptonshire adjoin each other and that the Wilbore towns mentioned above are all quite close to the line. I infer from this that the Wilbores in this vicinity on both sides of the line in northeastern Northamptonshire and southern Lincolnshire probably came from the same source, and, if so, were consequently related.

The Shermans came from Dedham and Colchester in Essex and there were quite a few towns in that county where Wilbores lived, including Braintree, Bracton, Clavering, Colchester, Great Coggeshall, Halstead, Little Maplestead, Great Maplestead, Sible Hedingham, St. Rumholly, Sisted, Writtle, Weeley and probably others.

There were Wilbore families also in at least twenty-five towns in Yorkshire, some in London, Huntingtonshire, Kent, County Leicestershire and a very few in Suffolk and Derbyshire. The ones in Cambridgeshire seem to have been all from the Doncaster branch of the family. As Michael Wilbore had land in Hertfordshire, there might have been some Wilbores there, although I have not come across any excepting Mathew, the grandson of Michael; he is said to have lived there.

Of the settlers who came over from England in 1630 with Winthrop, according to Colonel Banks, seventy-one came from Essex, one hundred and fifty-four from Suffolk, one hundred and forty-six from London and vicinity, nine from Yorkshire and twelve from Lincolnshire and a sprinkling from other counties. It hardly seems likely, however, that Samuel came with the Winthrop fleet.

According to the above, the Wilbores seemed to have been the most numerous in Yorkshire, Northamptonshire, Essex and Lincolnshire. It would seem that most of the people who joined the church in 1633 came from Lincolnshire, and many were from Boston in the same county.

In our collections of English Wilbore records we have the names of twelve hundred Wilbores, and out of all of these names we have but thirteen Samuels. Surely Samuel was not a very common name in the Wilbore family of England before 1600. Following is a list of these Samuel Wilbores—those having the asterisk (*) are eliminated:

1. Samuel* Wilbore, son of Michael of Arksey; died 1591 at Arksey.
2. Samuel,* son of the above Samuel; died 1574 at Arksey.
3. Samuel,* son of Zachary; baptized 1607 and died 1632 at Arksey.
4. Samuel*[4], son of Richard[3], Thomas[2], William[1], of Arksey in Bentley; born before his father's will was made in 1557. He would be too old.
5. Samuel,[6] son of Nicholas,[5] ———,[4] John,[3] Thomas,[2] William;[1] baptized 1579 at Arksey. Was he the one who died at Laughton in 1580? I think so.
6. Samuel, son of Thomas and Ursula; buried at Clavering 1560. There is a possibility that they had another son Samuel, of course.
7. Samuel,* son of Katherine, widow at Doncaster; buried 1632.
8. Samuel* Wildboard, died in East Indies in 1656. His will has been examined.
9. Samuel*, baptized at Misterton Notts in 1563, December 21. He would seem to be too early for our Samuel.
10. Samuel,* son of Edmund of Claverly, Yorks.; buried February 1597.
11. Samuel*, married June 18, 1689, at Nottingham Notts, Ann Hardmeat. He would, of course, be too late.
12. Samuel,* son of Edward and Mary; baptized June 16, 1695, at the parish of St. Olave, Hart Street, London. He would be too late.

13. Samuel,* of Nottingham, Notts; died 1740. (Too late.)

14. Samuel, son of Elizabeth of Sible Hedingham. Her will mentions son Samuel, who is executor of her will in 1624. He was living at the right time and also in Essex, where many of the first settlers came from. The names used in Elizabeth Wilbore's will are not ones familiar to us as Wilbor names.

As I have said at the beginning of this article, we have never found the parentage of Wilbore, the first settler, but it is hoped that after more extensive research that the mystery will be solved.

Following are several of the main branches of the Wilbore family in England:

The earliest ancestor of the Doncaster Wilbores, that we are able to trace to, is William Wildbore who in 1534 was mayor of Pontefracte, a city which is about twelve miles from Doncaster. He bore the arms, Sable on a fess, between two boars passante Argent; A Javelin point of the first. These arms were used by his descendant, Edmund Wilbore of Bentley who had them carved in gray sandstone and placed on the dove cote on the old Michael Wilbore place in that town.

Richard Holmes of Pontefracte who wrote the "Black Friars of Pontefracte" has the following to say of this branch of the Wildbores: "Some few additional remarks on the Wildbores of Pontefracte and neighbourhood will doubtless be acceptable, though I have lighted upon no evidence as to their origin. They were evidently the progenitors of all those who were afterwards so firmly rooted in South Yorkshire, in Cambridgeshire, and in Essex, the tradition and practice of the family having been for the eldest son to hive out, leaving his younger brother with the remnant of the property at home, to improve it as best he could." This book contains more information as to the church property owned later by the Wilbores.

NOTE—The Benjamin Franklin Wilbour comment-review on the English Wildbore lore will be continued in volume to follow.

ADDENDA

Since the publication of Volume I, the continuous study and research through old records has disclosed information adding to the record as previously shown. The items recorded here are, in many cases, minor in importance, but it is our aim to add, as it may be secured, all data. Owing to the interest shown by many members of the family, it is expected that more will be added, and such additions and changes will be published as opportunity permits.

In all cases, consult the index and text in the latest book and compare and use with information previously published.

The John Wilbor who married Mary Thurston was an illegitimate child of the above couple and assumed the name of Brownell and was so known.

From the Book of Taunton Superior Court, General Sessions, 1702-1714: On July 9, 1706 (the child was about three months old), Margaret Brownell and John Wilbore, Jr., were found guilty of having a bastard and Wilbore was charged to support the child and give bond for future behavior. Margaret Brownell's father, Robert, in his will, makes a bequest to "my grandson Wilbor," which must refer to this child, for none of Margaret's sisters married a Wilbur. Margaret later married William Congdell and was living in South Kingston, R. I., in 1733.
